Teacher Appointment Criteria
Philosophy 11100 – Ethics

Statement of Intent
This document is intended to be a planning resource for the prospective instructor and the Purdue Fort Wayne Department representative who mentors and supervises the Purdue Fort Wayne Collegiate Connection Program in Philosophy.

The course PHIL 11100 “Ethics” as taught at Purdue Fort Wayne is intended to be a broad introduction to major ideas in ethics that have shaped our society, culture, and history. A primary purpose of this course is to make students more familiar with the intellectual heritage their current society is built upon and to make them understand and appreciate it. However, this course should also broaden their horizon by including globalized perspectives. The PHIL 11100 offers both lectures on various topics and close readings and classroom discussions of a selection of seminal texts. Class topics should include a balanced introduction to the main positions in contemporary ethics and their history (e.g., ethical egoism, utilitarian ethics, deontological ethics, virtue ethics) as well as some case studies from applied ethics.

The PHIL 11100 “Ethics” as taught at Purdue Fort Wayne is a highly attractive course for students to take as it is approved as a course that fulfills [1] the Purdue Fort Wayne General Education requirement for Area IV: Humanistic Thought; is approved as a course that satisfies [2] the COAS BA requirement, Part 3 (Distribution): Humanities; is included to [3] the “Indiana Core Transfer Library” (see http://www.transferin.net/CTL/ for details).
