Buy a Grad a Brick!

Each year the graduating class has an opportunity to contribute to the class gift by purchasing a brick in the Alumni Millennium Brick Walk for half price! For $25 the grad's name and graduation year are placed on a brick — a reminder of that person's accomplishments. If you would like to order a brick for someone, go to https://secure.ipfw.edu/develop/classgift04.htm. The brick is placed in the Alumni Millennium Brick Walk in late summer.

It's never too late to order your own alumni brick — just $50!

Mother and daughter experience IPFW’s transformation firsthand as Student Housing opens on campus

Changing Faces, Changing Structures

Remember back (or imagine – depending on your age) to the year 1964. The Beatles appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was passed, My Fair Lady won the Academy Award for best picture, and IPFW opened its doors as a joint campus of both Indiana University and Purdue University. The campus was small, consisting only of Ketner Hall.

Jump in time to near IPFW’s midpoint. In 1979, a young student named Debbie Kay Gregg (now Kirkland) prepared to graduate with an Associate of Science with a major in nursing. She enjoyed her time at IPFW and was on her way to a successful career.

Now it’s April 2004. Nearly 40 years after IPFW was founded and 25 years after her mother graduated, Debbie Lynn Kirkland prepares for her first year at IPFW. The Northrop High School senior not only will attend IPFW in the fall but also plans to be among the first group of students to have a “traditional” college experience at IPFW — living in IPFW’s Student Housing.

When housing opens in August 2004, Debbie Lynn will experience IPFW quite differently than her mother did. Amid classes and campus social events, she’ll get to live in brand-new housing on the Waterfield Campus and make the short walk over the newly built Willis Family Bridge to the main campus of IPFW. She’ll have the choice of several furnished apartment styles (one-, two-, or four-bedroom) that have fully equipped kitchens, air conditioning, restrooms, and the same computer network capabilities as the rest of campus. She can also maintain her active lifestyle on the basketball courts or at the fitness center. Finally, she can rest assured knowing that her safety is protected by campus security.

These amenities simply weren’t available back when Debbie Kay was at IPFW. Now a married mother of three and a patient case manager at St. Joseph Hospital Home Health Care, Debbie Kay remembers four buildings:

CLASS RING CEREMONY

April 14, Kettler Hall, Room 178
Chancellor Michael V. Nellis will present alumni, as well as juniors and seniors, with their official IU or Purdue rings. Rings can only be purchased by those who have reached junior class status or higher in an IU or Purdue program. Rings are worn with the IU or Purdue logo facing towards the person while a student. Upon graduation the ring is reversed so the logo faces outward. For ring information, contact Sherrie at 260-481-6607 or at fulghums@ipfw.edu.

Dinner and Cash Bar, $15/person — even if you didn’t have Prof. Ed Leonard for class, chances are you knew him! And if he knew you, he really knew you! Ask him and “Easy Ed” can recall your final exam grade — no matter which year you graduated! Come share your memories and tales as Prof. Leonard prepares for retirement.

The event is hosted by the SIMS Alumni School Council. For reservations, contact Sherrie at 260-481-6607 or at fulghums@ipfw.edu.

Dinner at 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.
Walb Ballroom, 6 p.m.
Roasting of Prof. Ed Leonard
April 23, Walb Ballroom, 6 p.m. — Sh-h-h-h! It’s a secret!

Diner and Cash Bar, $15/person — even if you didn’t have Prof. Leonard for class, chances are you knew him! And if he knew you, he really knew you! “Kettler Hall, Neff, the student union, and the library. Plus there were a couple trailer sites on campus. Students congregated in the front lobby of Kettler Hall and the cafeteria in the student union for socialization. … My fondest memories of IPFW were midnight study sessions with other nursing students at the student union cafeteria.”

Although students still hang out in Kettler Hall and Walb Student Union, there are now 20 buildings on campus, which include the eight new student housing buildings opening in the fall. A new music building and medical education building are coming soon.

Debbie Kay is thrilled that her daughter will experience IPFW’s newest addition. “I’m looking forward to Debbie learning to become more independent socially as well as financially and becoming a responsible adult while living in IPFW Student Housing quarters. Also, I will have a feeling of security knowing that Debbie is safe and a few minutes away if I need to reach her or she needs me.”

Debbie Lynn shares her mom’s excitement about coming to IPFW. “I didn’t want to move into an apartment because that would cost too much money. The new Student Housing is the perfect thing for me. It is not that expensive and I still get a little independence too.”

Living in Student Housing will allow Debbie Lynn to get more involved in campus life, a bonus for this busy high school senior — she is active as president of GATE (Growth in Agriculture Through Education) student group and works at Professional Federal Credit Union. “I think that IPFW has a great campus life. From what I’ve seen and heard, IPFW is always busy. They always have some function or group-sponsored social event. I really believe that I will enjoy campus life at IPFW, because I love to be on the go.”

She also hopes to carry on the tradition of study groups like her mom participated in, only this time in the comfort of Student Housing rather than a cafeteria. “I plan to meet a lot of new people while living in IPFW’s new housing. I want to gain a lot of friendships as well as meet a lot of people that I can study with. That always helps when it comes to exams.”

Debbie Lynn’s mom looks forward to seeing her daughter flourish in IPFW Student Housing and believes that lots of other students will benefit too. “The Student Housing will hopefully attract more potential students living in other cities and states as well as potential students living in town who want to experience campus life without moving out of state.”

While Debbie Kay shares with her daughter the last few months of her high school senior year, going to the prom, and graduating from high school, she also looks ahead to her daughter’s upcoming college years. “I hope the future brings for my daughter happiness, success, and prosperity with the relationships she has now and yet to encounter and her chosen career.”

Debbie Kay and all IPFW alumni will get the opportunity on Aug. 6 and 7 to experience what Debbie Lynn and other students will experience in the coming school year. To help celebrate IPFW’s upcoming 40th anniversary, Alumni Relations will offer alumni the chance to spend the night in the new IPFW student housing. See page three for more details.
