

Critical Thinkers: Characteristics

As critical thinkers, our students will develop the ability to use various chemical paradigms to analyze, evaluate, interpret, and draw inferences about the physical universe; they will understand and know the limitations of the methodological, conceptual, and evidential considerations on which modern chemical paradigms are based; they will be capable of communicating chemical concepts to experts and non-experts alike using both oral and written language