You have been charged with alleged violation(s) of Part II.A of the Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities, and Conduct:

Using or attempting to use unauthorized materials, information, or study aids in any academic exercise. The term “academic exercise” includes all forms of work submitted for credit or hours.

Falsifying or fabricating any information or citation in an academic exercise.

Helping or attempting to help another in committing acts of academic dishonesty, including, but not limited to, sharing papers and assignments.

Adopting or reproducing ideas or statements of another person as one’s own without acknowledgment (plagiarism).

Submitting work from one course to satisfy the requirements of another course unless submission of such work is permitted by the faculty member.

Serving as or permitting another student to serve as a substitute (or “ringer”) in taking an exam.

Altering of answers or grades on a graded assignment without authorization of the faculty member.

Engaging in activities that unfairly place other students at a disadvantage, such as taking, hiding, or altering resource material.

Violating professional or ethical standards of the profession or discipline for which a student is preparing (declared major and/or minor) as adopted by the relevant academic program.

Scheduled Academic Conduct Conference Date:

Time:

Location:

At your academic conduct conference, you will have the opportunity to respond to the alleged violation. You may have an advisor or other counsel present during the academic conduct conference, the role of whom is limited to that of advising you. You need not answer questions during the academic conduct conference and your choice to remain silent will not be taken as an admission of responsibility, nor shall it be detrimental to your position.

Failure to appear for a scheduled academic conduct conference may result in a sanction being imposed without benefit of conference if the available information supports the charge
