SPEECH-LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY AT PURDUE UNIVERSITY FORT WAYNE

Congratulations on taking the next step toward becoming a speech-language pathologist! We are excited to tell you about the opportunity for graduate study at Purdue Fort Wayne.

The SLP program provides students hands-on experiences to develop the knowledge and clinical skills needed to be a successful speech-language pathologist. The small class size will allow you to get to know fellow students and work together on small group projects and simulated clinical cases.

Being in Fort Wayne, which is the second largest city in Indiana, will provide opportunities to complete off-site clinical experiences in a range of clinical settings including hospitals, rehabilitation centers, and public schools. Additional information about our program can be found on our website: pfw.edu/csd/

BENEFITS

GAIN REAL-WORLD EXPERIENCE

The Master of Science degree in Speech-Language Pathology is a two-year, full-time program that includes graduate level coursework focusing on assessment and treatment of speech, language, and swallowing disorders across the lifespan. Throughout the program, coursework and clinical experiences are integrated so that students develop the knowledge and skills needed to successfully engage in evidence-based practice as a speech-language pathologist. During the first year of the program, students gain clinical experiences in the department's on-campus Communication Disorders Clinic. "A really unique feature of PFW's program that stuck out to me when applying to numerous programs is the critical thinking course. I believe I am learning so much and will be successful because the professors take the time to help us and teach application skills of the materials being taught in class. No other program I researched offered an opportunity like this!"

Morgan Bogdanic, Current SLP Graduate Student

"Choosing PFW was the best decision I made for my academic career. I have met so many wonderful people in my cohort. I love the smaller classes and group projects that allow us to bond and learn together. I also could not ask for better professors who truly care for my education and well-being. I am excited to continue expanding my knowledge and preparing for my future career with these inspirational people by my side."

Holly Bradtmueller, Current SLP Graduate Student

SEQUENCE OF COURSEWORK

The curriculum for the M.S. in Speech-Language Pathology is based on a cohort model in which students take the required courses in a set curriculum. Adhering to the specified sequence of courses is essential because each semester (except for summer semesters), students will enroll in one critical thinking course which emphasizes the integration of the knowledge and skills being learned in the other required courses that semester. Therefore, to successfully participate in and benefit from those critical thinking courses, students must be enrolled in the full structured set of co-requisite courses each semester.

The degree is structured to be completed in six semesters of continuous full-time enrollment starting in a summer semester.
