A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

The CACREP-accredited Counselor Education program at Purdue Fort Wayne prepares graduate students for licensure in the counseling profession. Students can choose from among three (3) concentrations:

- Clinical Mental Health Counseling (CMHC): prepares students for Masters-level licensure as a mental health counselor. Students gain knowledge and skills to therapeutically address a wide variety of individual and relational concerns with adults, children, adolescents, couples, families, and groups following intensive practicum training and community-based internship. Graduates are also eligible to pursue state licensure as a clinical addictions counselor.
- College Counseling and Student Affairs (CCSA): prepares students for Master's-level licensure as a mental health counselor, while providing specialized knowledge and skills for a variety of Master's-level student affair career positions in university settings. Students gain knowledge and skills to therapeutically address a variety of individual and relational concerns with adults, children, adolescents, college students, and groups following intensive practicum training in college-based or community-based internship. Graduates specialize in counseling with university students and are eligible to complete an on-campus university internship.
- School Counseling (SC): prepares students for Masters-level licensure as a school counselor, with the professional knowledge and skills to promote academic, career, and personal/social development among K-12 students. Graduates are prepared to work as active change agents in community schools through direct counseling with students, development of comprehensive school counseling programs, and advocacy for children and families.

Our mission is to serve as the premiere regional institution for counselor preparation, training the next generation of optimally-skilled, reflective, compassionate, and research-informed counselors. We are committed to a multidimensional training philosophy that emphasizes mental health (vs. pathology), developmental themes across the lifespan, and an interpersonal process model that conceptualizes all individuals as embedded within tiered, complex systems. Understanding and appreciating diversity, multiculturalism, and social justice is integral to counseling practice. We train all students to advocate for individual and systemic change at local through global levels.

PROGRAM DETAILS

Cohort Model & Course Sequencing

This is a continuous, three-year graduate program. Students take most classes together as a cohort, which supports active peer engagement via discussions, roleplays, and small group activities. Course sequencing is designed to optimize counselor training in preparation for practicum:

- Year 1: Theory and content classes with ongoing skill development and roleplay training scenarios.
- Year 2: On-site practicum and track-specific content classes. Gain experience working with clients.
- Year 3: Field-based internships and final content classes. Gain experience in the community.

New students begin Year 1 in the second 6-week summer session. Only two (2) classes are taken each semester, which supports student work/life/school balance and allows us to provide a full year of on-site practicum training in the CCC (see details below). Each class is held one night per week starting at 4:30pm. Fall and spring semester classes end at 7:15pm while summer classes end at 7:45pm. Clinical practicum and internship classes end around 9:30pm.

Practicum at the PFW Community Counseling Center (CCC)

The CCC is the practicum training facility for our graduate counseling students. We provide over 1000 hours of free counseling services to over 100 clients from the Fort Wayne community each year. Per CACREP accreditation standards, each class section has a maximum of six (6) graduate students.

Practicum is led by faculty or licensed counseling supervisors who guide students in the process of treatment planning, case conceptualization, and skill development. Students conduct sessions with individuals, couples, and families, as well as children, adolescents, and adults. Supervisors observe all sessions live via our in-built video monitoring system, providing students with active feedback and guidance both during and after counseling sessions. This is a gold standard in counselor preparation.

Students begin practicum in Fall of Year 2. SC and CCSA students complete 2 semesters in the CCC (fall and spring), while CMHC students complete 3 semesters (fall, spring, and summer). Each class meets once per week for five (5) hours. A typical class includes: 1 hour of preparatory group supervision discussion, 3 hours of counseling sessions, and 1 hour of processing/group supervision as the professional team discusses how to provide the best counseling services possible.

Community Based Internships

Students begin community-based internships in Fall of Year 3. All students must complete a minimum of 600 training hours (2 semesters) at their site. We have established relationships with over 100 schools and mental health agencies in the northeastern Indiana region. Our students have found tremendous success in a wide variety of settings due to our program's intensive preparation leading into Year 3.

- Drake Turner; Counselor, PFW Center for Student Counseling graduate

"If not for the phenomenal training that I experienced over the past three years through Purdue University Fort Wayne, I cannot imagine trying to take on the huge responsibility that is required as a practicing school counselor. The counselor education program taught me to be a team player, active listener, and empathetic counselor. In addition, the program goes a step further and supervises each budding counselor for a full year before releasing them into an internship setting."
