Graduates Complete Their PFW Journey

When first stepping on the Purdue University Fort Wayne campus, new students might be full of trepidation, wondering if they've made the right choice—and if they can truly make this adventure work.

But as they walk across the commencement stage as graduates, soon to revel in the falling confetti, most are ready to show off the courage and skills they've built along the way.

PFW Chancellor Ron Elsenbaumer further encouraged the Class of 2025 during Wednesday's 57th commencement at Memorial Coliseum.

"As I look out at all of you today—and there are so many of you—I feel tremendous pride and hope," Elsenbaumer said. "Hope for your success. Hope for your future. Hope for your good health. And, above all, hope for your happiness."
