COMMENCEMENT TRADITIONS

ACADEMIC DRESS

It is believed that the tradition of the academic costume began during the 12th or 13th century in early European universities. At that time, the clergy composed the majority of the educated class, so academic dress is an adaptation of the cape or mantle—usually made of silk or wool—worn by church dignitaries in religious processions.

Through the years, great diversity in color and style of cap, gown, and hood developed. In 1896, colleges and universities in the United States adopted a uniform code governing academic dress. Today, the black cap, gown, and hood worn by the graduates in most institutions follow this code, although most universities do not use the hood for graduates receiving bachelor's degrees.

The cap, or mortarboard, which is sometimes referred to as the Oxford cap, is black and has a long tassel that is fastened by a button on the top. The tassel is usually worn over the left of the cap. The color of the tassel on the cap indicates the degree.

While it is not apparent to the casual observer, the gowns worn by the recipients of different degrees vary somewhat in design. The sleeves of the gowns worn by the baccalaureate candidates are long and pointed, while the sleeves of the gowns worn by the master's degree recipients are square at one end and have a slit at the elbow. The doctoral gown has flowing sleeves with three bars of velvet and a facing of velvet on the front of the gown.

Hoods differ in color—which serves as identification for the degree—and design. The hood of the doctoral candidate is distinct from that of the master's, as it has side panels and is slightly longer. The velvet border of the hood indicates the degree and usually follows the same code as the color of the tassels.

Master's degree candidates wear a black tassel. The color of the hood identifies the college from which they are receiving their degree. Undergraduate degree candidates wear a colored tassel that identifies the college from which they are receiving their degree. The tassel colors are as follows:

 DRAB Richard T. Doerner School of Business	 LIGHT BLUE School of Education	 ORANGE College of Engineering, Technology, and Computer Science	 SILVER AND WHITE Integrated Studies
 WHITE College of Liberal Arts	 GOLD College of Science	 BROWN College of Visual and Performing Arts	 PINK School of Music

CEREMONIAL MACE

Dating back to medieval times, maces have a long tradition of ushering in formal, ceremonial events. Carried by the university marshal, and only present when the chancellor is in attendance, the mace signifies that the proceedings have official sanction. In recognition of the momentousness and solemnity of the occasion, Purdue University Fort Wayne's mace is used solely during commencement ceremonies and university convocations.

In 2020, Robert F. Schroeder, artist and limited-term lecturer, in collaboration with Dana A. Goodman, professor emeritus, designed and crafted the first official Purdue Fort Wayne mace. Intricate stories of the university's founding come to life through the mace's meticulous carvings and metalwork, thoughtful materials, and careful placement.
