

Success Coaches Prepared to Lead as New Student Orientation Begins

Each summer, student success coaches representing the Office of Admissions at Purdue University Fort Wayne are asked to step forward—and sometimes backward—to set a positive tone for new students. Because of their role, it's not an overstatement to say the coaches can change futures.

Working as leaders during new student orientation, the success coaches are upperclassmen who are the university's foot soldiers. They help facilitate a smooth transition to college life at PFW and also serve as mentors and friends throughout the school year.

"I got the chance to interview every single one of these new coaches, to meet them and get to know them," said group leader Thomas Carroll. "I am so excited to see how much impact they can have on every new student that comes to PFW because I know that each of them is amazing.”
