

Add Release Conditions to Course Content and Assessments

Overview

Release conditions allow you to control when students can access different elements within the course, including modules, topics, and assessments. When you attach a release condition to an item in your course, students cannot see that item until they meet the associated condition. If multiple conditions are attached to an item, the student must meet all conditions before the item can be accessed.

Objectives

By following this guide, you will be able to:

Part 1: Add release conditions to modules, topics, quizzes, assignments, and discussions.

Part 2: Specify the release condition type and details.

Part 3: Use release conditions to restrict course content to specific groups or sections of students.

Part 1: Add release conditions to modules, topics, quizzes, assignments, and discussions.

Part 2: Set the release condition type and details.

Release condition types and details specify the particular action(s) that a student must complete before gaining access to an item or activity. For example, students may be required to view specific content, complete a certain quiz, or receive feedback on a particular assignment before they can access a future item or activity within the course. NOTE: Multiple release conditions can be added to a single item. If multiple conditions are attached to a single item, all conditions must be met before the student can access the item.

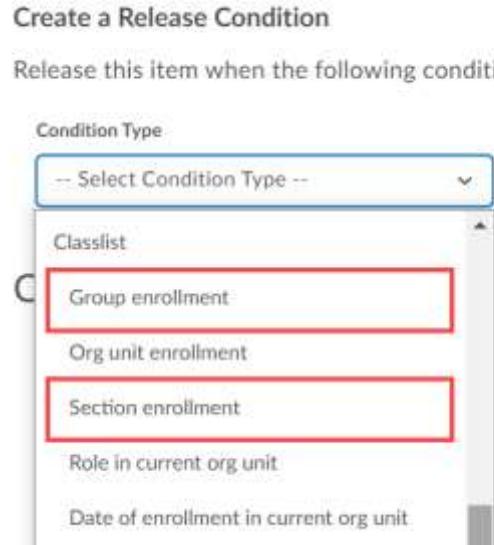

After following the initial steps in Part 1 of this guide, complete the process using the steps below:
